20th Annual Brandon Jazz Festival

WELCOME!

It was six years ago that I last coordinated the Brandon Jazz Festival and at that time we had 108 groups participate. I had thought (mistakenly) that 108 was as big a Festival as we could handle, but here we are with almost 160 registered groups this year. Hats off to Roger Mantie and Sean McManus for the wonderful job they have done in growing and coordinating the Festival during my "time off."

Obviously jazz education is alive and well in Manitoba and the surrounding provinces and U.S. states. This year sees participation from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and North Dakota. We have a waiting list in vocal jazz and over 120 instrumental jazz groups participating. It is wonderful to see the number of students who are listening to and playing in the styles of Count Basie, Tito Puente, Bob Mintzer and other jazz greats and I commend all of the teachers for the time, leadership and patience you have invested in your students. You never know who at the Festival will become one of the next jazz greats.

I also want to thank all of the sponsors and volunteers for their efforts in making the event the success that it is. Special thanks go out to the students from Brandon University who have all worked tremendously hard to make this a positive experience for all participants and we hope that as you leave you take with you a deeper appreciation and understanding of the essence of this wonderful music called jazz. — Brent Campbell

Boogie Woogie Blues with an original twist...

...is how Blue Willow describe themselves. And after eleven years together, two indie CD's, countless festival and television appearances, and an average of a hundred and sixty or so live shows a year, they're still going strong.

It's not about fame.
It's not about fortune.
It's definitely not about gear.
It's about making a living making music.

We at Yorkville design and build instrument amplifiers, mixers, power amplifiers and loudspeakers based on quality sound, value and reliability. These factors have to be taken into consideration when you're buying the tools of your trade.

Ease of operation is also something we consider... the goal is to be a musician, not a technician.

"We need our system to sound great night after night. It has to set up and tear down easily (we often have to do it by ourselves). It has to work great for the duo, and for the full band.

...And above all, it has to be reliable. We have to know the system is going to work at least as hard as we do. That's why we rely on Yorkville."
